INTRODUCTION

Herein are some of the tunes that I sang in worship at Pluckemin Presbyterian Church as a child and a teenager. These are the tunes I want my ringers, singers, nieces and nephews to know, sing and love. These melodies are solid, singable, beautiful and they have been around for a very long time. Many of them originated as folks tunes. It is not that great new tunes are not emerging all the time. They are and we should learn them and sing them. We will never know if a new song has lasting power unless we sing it and give it the test of time. So let us sing the new songs to the Lord, but let us not forget the ones in this collection.

This collection of hymn tune arrangements is for four octaves choirs. There is not one single optional note; play all the notes you see. I hope that you enjoy looking at scores of handbell music uncluttered with brackets [], braces { }, parenthesis (), etc.. Although the arrangements are conceived for handbells, they can readily be played by handchimes, probably to quite good affect. All of the pieces span the range of difficulty between level one and level two. Some are super simple, some might border near Level Three. I opted to make them shorter rather than longer, each piece being 2-3 minutes. They each feel complete in and of themselves and are appropriate length for most worship settings.

As a teacher and director, I try to view every single piece as an opportunity to teach, reinforce or refine a musical concept, whether it is a rhythmic pattern, a handbell technique, a dynamic level, the perfect ritardando or accelerando, counting mixed meters, chords played perfectly together at the same dynamic level, a section where everyone is hitting the mallet on the bell in the best place at the same time, etc.. As an arranger, I hope that this collection will provide that opportunity for handbell directors everywhere to grow your choirs in this way, to challenge them and to give them success.

This a blatantly Christian collection of handbell arrangements. Soli Deo Gloria.
